

MIKE GILLESPIE

*Pet Butler Franchise Owner
Londonderry, New Hampshire*

Starting an Essential Business

Mike Gillespie came to Pet Butler with a successful background as a Registered Nurse for many years before becoming an Administrator for a local hospital. His wife, Brenda, owns and operates her own business, Happy Days Mobile Grooming. Along with their daughter, Ally, the Gillespie's have become a recognized face of the Londonderry pet industry.

Choosing Pet Butler

Mike got his first taste of entrepreneurship at a young age when he owned and operated a swimming pool safety business. After seeing Brenda's jump into the pet industry, Mike wanted to start a business that would allow him to work with pets too. Not long after beginning his search he found Pet Butler. "I was excited about the franchising opportunity, the recurring revenue, and the many levels of support the Pet Butler system offered," said Mike. "Having previously owned a business, the value I put on these benefits, the influence the system would have on stimulating my start-up, and the collective knowledge of the system far outweighed the initial and ongoing investments."

"The National Call Center, the Support Center, and the people at Pet Butler is what really drove my decision of owning and operating a Pet Butler franchise," said Mike. "I continue to be impressed by how the Support Center team listens and addresses all of my question and concerns."

Diversifying the Family Business

Although Mike knew he wanted to follow his wife Brenda's lead into the pet industry, they also were aware that each of them liked their space in the day-to-day operations. Being able to be together with active roles in the community, co-market their opportunities to each of their clients, and create new paths for their daughter Ally were important. They liked the idea of doubling down with the pet industry, turning their passion for pets into a business strategy. The family also found that Pet Butler added a safety net being deemed an essential business with recurring revenue provided through the COVID-19 pandemic.

“They have a team of experts who wake up every day focused on helping me execute my customized business plan.”

Benefits of Joining a Franchise

As a part of every franchise owner's annual review, each business builds a customized business plan designed to help that individual's goals and dreams. "They have a team of experts who wake up every day focused on helping me execute my customized business plan." Mike believed that Pet Butler was everything his family was looking for when considering investing in the next business.
